

GREGOR

Gregor is a hybrid sans serif typeface family with two variants: Upright and Slanted. The design is inspired by graphic design in advertising from the United States during the decades of the 60s and 70s.

It has a geometric appearance with a condensed structure, and a black weight that allows it to be used in short sentences and titles in sizes greater than 20 points.

Its main goal is to generate distinctive letterforms that enhance the message, creating hierarchy and emphasis in the word. Additionally, it has a set of characters that includes Latin and Cyrillic alphabet, alternates, geometric shapes, miscellaneous and a large number of ligatures that makes it very useful in various instances.
